

Ectodermal dysplasia

A number of disorders of structures from the ectoderm, caused by one's genetics. Symptoms of ectodermal dysplasia include: hypoplasia of the upper jaw, sparse fine hair, pigmentation around the eyes and mouth, absence of eyelashes and eyebrows, conical teeth, atypical tooth shape, microdontia, wide diastema, reduced bite height.

Links

Related articles

- Disorders of tooth development

Used literature

- MERGLOVÁ, Vlasta – IVANČAKOVÁ, Romana. Vývojové a získané poruchy zubů a tvrdých zubních tkání. 1. edition. Praha : Havlíček Brain Team, 2011. 119 pp. ISBN 978-80-87109-27-4.

A child with ectodermal dysplasia