

Lanza's point

Lanza's point lies on the linea bispinalis at a distance of one third from the spina iliaca anterior superior dextra. Pain at this point is typical of acute appendicitis .

links

Related articles

- The McBurney point
- Acute appendicitis
- Objective symptoms of acute abdomen
- Signs of Peritoneal Irritation
- Painful right lower abdomen syndrome
- Diffuse peritonitis
- Sudden abdominal events

References

- PETROVICKÝ, Pavel. Anatomie s topografií a klinickými aplikacemi : Pohybové ústrojí. 1. edition. Martin : Osveta, 2001. 463 pp. ISBN 80-8063-046-1.