

Proerythroblast

Proerythroblast is the first microscopically recognizable precursor of hematopoiesis. It is a relatively large cell, with a large round nucleus and one or two nucleoli. Free ribosomes in the cytoplasm cause mild basophilia. The next cell of the blood cell lineage is the basophilic erythroblast.

Links

Related articles

- Hematopoiesis (histology)

Used literature

-
-

Proerythroblast cell

Template:Navbox - erytropoéza