

Stupor

Stupor is characterized by the inability to move, stiffness, with the absence of spontaneous movement. The patient keeps his eyes closed indefinitely, without facial expressions, reduced response to stimulation, often also impaired consciousness.

Links

Related articles

- Somnolence
- Coma

References

RABOCH, Jiří – ZVOLSKÝ, Petr. Psychiatrie. - edition. Galén, 2001. 622 pp. ISBN 9788072621408.