

AZAN

AZAN staining (azocarmine, aniline blue and orange G) is a clear histological staining for highlighting ligaments . Azocarmine colors the nuclei red, orange G colors the cytoplasm of cells, and aniline blue is used to stain collagen (intercellular matter in connective tissue) or mucin in cells blue. Erythrocytes turn red.

Links

Related articles

- Hematoxylin-eosin staining
- Staining in light microscopy
- Histochemistry

Peyer's patches of the ileum stained with the AZAN method