

Dysuria

Dysuria is a burning, sharp pain coming from the urethra or its surroundings. Causes of dysuria:

- local irritation of the urethral orifice (intertrigo, balanitis, vulvovaginitis, use of inappropriate soaps or bath additives),

- evacuation of too concentrated urine (dehydration),

- inflammation of the lower urinary tract (cystitis, urethritis),

- using drugs that irritate the bladder mucosa (sulfonamides, cyclophosphamide, amitriptylin).^[1]

Links

Related articles

- Examination of the child's uropoietic system
- Urinary tract infections
- Nocturia
- Polakisuria

External links

- Dysuria (Czech wikipedia)
- Dysuria (English wikipedia)

Source

1. LEBL, Jan – PROVAZNÍK, Kamil – HEJCMANOVÁ, Ludmila, et al. Preklinická pediatrie. 2. edition. Praha : Galén, 2007. pp. 139-146. ISBN 978-80-7262-438-6.