

Elementary postural reflexes

Elementary postural reflexes (ERP) are tonic fixation reflexes.

During passive bending, some limbs allow a short stabilization in a given position - fixation in a flexed position.

They are an indicator of the functional state of the extrapyramidal system, they can also be used to assess muscle tone.

Links

Source

- TROJAN, Stanislav. Slovníček lékařské fyziologie. 2. edition. Prague : Galén, 2006. ISBN 8072623753.