

Photoluminescence

The radiated energy absorbed by the substance is transformed into new radiation (of a longer wavelength), which either disappears almost simultaneously with the interruption of future radiation (fluorescence), or lasts significantly longer (phosphorescence).

Use of Phenomenon:

- Making invisible radiation visible (UV, RTG etc.).