Spiritual Medicine by Dr.Semmal

This field in Medical Education would strive for the greater cause of enhancing Morality in Medical Education.

Scientists have a problem. They have an inherent desire to move beyond the point to which they arrive pondering for a lifetime. From a point of view, the religious Scholars also have a similar sort of problem, they have an inherent urge to seek the truth with all its inherent beauty. This is a wonderful attribute and terming it as a problem is a wrong word usage pattern, I could hear your mind voice – still the term “Problem” will be preferred by the unrelenting population, which has not moved to the other side of the river – the river of Science and Religion. So it is, So it was and So it will be — Science and Spirituality are inseparable. The seemingly contradicting stand between Science and religion is man made and false – that which melts in front of knowledge and spiritual ascent.
