

The Ross operation

The Ross operation is a technically and time-consuming cardiac surgical procedure in which the aortic valve replaced with the patient's own pulmonary valve and the pulmonary valve is then replaced with an allograft.^{[1][2]}

References

Reference

1. VANĚK, Ivan. Kardiovaskulární chirurgie. 1. edition. Karolinum, 2003. 236 pp. ISBN 8024605236.
2. DOMINIK, J – ŽÁČEK, P. Náhrady srdečních chlopní [online]. [cit. 2022-02-03]. <http://www.kardiologickeforum.cz/pdf/kf_05_02_03.pdf>.